

This classically detailed Santa Fe Style home features many authentic and architecturally correct design elements from the Nicolai Fechin house, now the Taos Art Museum. Enter a charming courtyard paved with canterra and leading to the front door of the main house as well as the entry to the attached guest casita. Inside find warm polished wood floors, exquisite white plaster walls, imported beams and 18th century corbels. Multiple fireplaces add warmth and charm to bedrooms, living room, family room, dining room, and outside. Custom furniture grade cabinets are found throughout the home including the lovely, well-appointed kitchen with finest quality appliances. Beautiful hand-painted custom tiles add interest to the kitchen and each bathroom; no two the same. A wonderful split floor plan including a private den for the secondary en-suite bedrooms. You will live outside with deep covered patios, a beautiful tiled pool and a great entertaining ramada with BBQ and smoker. Large cul-de-sac lot offers privacy, lovely landscaping, and serenity.
